The very first thing that comes to mind here is whether overloaded high-tension or low-tension wires were nearby. Since this incident occurred at a roadside, nearby power lines may well have been present.

If such lines are overloaded or badly insulated, fatal arcing can occur FROM THE GROUND at a considerable distance from the power lines. This has happened often in our country, in rural areas where public utilities have quietly overloaded their lines. The resulting discharges can easily electrocute livestock over 1/4 mile from the "leaky" H/T lines. I bet that Hungarian utility agencies are guilty of the same practice...

Personally, I suspect that this poor man was electrocuted thru his own urine. The "ball lightning" witnessed by the victim's wife may have been ST. ELMO's FIRE -- an ungrounded corona around the victim in the damp, pre-thunderstorm conditions. The hole in his heel and tennis shoe indicates where the current finally grounded itself.

One of my uncles saw this happen to a young man in Eastern Canada (PEI) in the early 1960s. The area was just being electrified and the power lines must have been practically smoking (in fact, there were near-catastrophic forest fires that could have been cause by the things, now that I remember that summer). Anyway, the victim had been working with several other men in a field -- when they finished, they washed up at a washbasin on an outdoor table, about 100 yards from the overhead power line(s) beside the road. When the poor guy had washed up, he emptied the basin on the ground and was electrocuted. As in the Hungarian case, a hole was burned through the heel of his boot. He lived for about 15 minutes, then died.

So Sheldon, the next time you drive past a pasture where the cattle are all wearing those silly rubber boots -- don't stop to relieve yourself.

Best,
Clark

PS -- Weird as all this is, genuine SHC is much, much weirder. The Mary Reeser case is so bizarre as to be beyond belief. She was INCINERATED in a chair, and so was a perfect circle of the floor that the chair was on. Coroner estimated temps of 3000 degrees plus. Almost NO OTHER DAMAGE to the room or the house, and there was NO FIRE.

I have a couple of text files on this: SHC1.ZIP and SHC2.ZIP,
from KeelyNet

You bet. They're not the only ones, either. Vallee in Confrontations goes into considerable detail about UFO "sunburn".
The Brazilian cases he described were so bizarre, however, that nuclear radiation alone does not seem to account for some of them.

One horrible case resembled high-speed leprosy -- the victim literally disintegrated within two days. It was painless but he was conscious until very close to his death.

Good question, and I don't know. I do know that Jupiter is so massive that its core should be hypothetically composed of solid hydrogen -- a form of H2 that we cannot synthesize here on earth.
Perhaps there is a "critical mass" of solid H2 needed to get a star going??

I don't know, though. Maybe someone else here? (Jim Graham???)

Best,
  Clark

Well, okay. But there is an NIS: Naval Investigative Service. Doesn't prove a thing, just wondered if some names had gotten mixed up. I know there's an NIS cause they got me once--a long, long time ago (in a galaxy far away)

Happy to have you. I wonder if you have any thoughts about our subject from a Canadian perspective? Is there any twist on UFOs or particularly compelling sighting reports you might know about that we might not get quite as easily 'down here?'

+Roswell, the most dramatic example of what is happening and the most +dramatic example of the government (almost) screwing up. What am I

We can't discuss all of the subjects all of the time. Have you seen Randle & Schmidt's book yet? I had to order it through the mail because I never saw any copies at the local Waldenbooks. Silly me, I thought that book might get the public's attention and shake out some of the apathy, but it's not going to get their attention if they don't know it exists!

You mean this 'Beyond Reality' thing (what a stupid title!) is a series? I saw an episode on psychic healing or some such thing (I taped it, but haven't watched it yet) advertised for last Friday, but I didn't know it was going to be a series. Does anyone know what else they have in store for us?

Robert Trevelyan writes:

+Does any one have any information on human spontaneous combustion?
+I have just heard the UK BUFORA message number 98 in which Jenny Randles +likens the the energy of such strange events to the energy which is +associated with the creation of crop circles. She even asked if anyone +has any information on spontaneous combustion to contact BUFORA.
+I am very interested in this as Jenny Randles has always seemed to have +been in the plasma vortex camp, is this a change of heart.

Jerry Decker at KeelyNet says that there are some theories that nuclear reactions take place within cells. His own thinking on SHC is that it might be caused by these nuclear reactions going out of control due to an imbalance in body chemistry.

There's also the Allende story about SHC caused by interference with the body's electromagnetic (or ???) field by an external field. (If Allende didn't make the whole thing up like he once said he did.)

I'm puzzled as to what this has to do with crop circles, though. Certainly there seems to be heat involved, but there's already the plasma vortex theory and even the orbital maser testing theory that could explain that. There is the odd matter of the radioisotopes described in Sheldon's recent message, however. I'll have to ask Jerry if he can dig up any details on the 'biological transmutation' (as it's called) theories. (Then there's the question of what, other than hoaxes, produces such fancy patterns. Have any of the fancy patterns been proven to be anything other than hoaxes? If they have, it looks like we're stuck with either the alien intelligence theory or the maser testing.)

A final note on plants and mysterious energy: I'm pretty sure I read somewhere that Wilhelm Reich's orgone accumulator design was inspired by the cell walls of plants. The orgone accumulator boxes would always be warmer on the inside than on the outside for no apparent reason. If plant cells, like the orgone boxes, are transducers for some sort of energy field, what would happen if they were exposed to a much higher than normal level of that energy? (I'm not going to pretend to have any ideas on what would cause such a field!)

Hello Clark,

Thanks for your reply and comments on the Hungarian ball lightning case. I certainly agree with your hypothesis that "leaky" power lines could have been the culprit in this situation, IF they were present. I'll check that aspect out with the author in England and get back to you.

The reason I brought this case up is that one of the main theories advanced in the past, although without adequate proof, has been that ball lightning somehow intruded into the room of the SHC victim.

For further information, this case was investigated by ball-lightning expert Dr. George Egely of the Central Institute of Physics, Budapest and was reported at the Second Ball Lightning Conference held in Budapest in June 1990.

Amazingly, there are still many physicists who insist that ball lightning can not exist, despite many eye-witness reports, and a few photographs.

Like you said Clark, for safety's sake, when outdoors in inclement weather, be sure to urinate _only_ into a well insulated, properly grounded receptacle.

Take care,

Sheldon

Hi Mike,

Thanks for letting me know that you're running 9600 v.32 up there.

Actually, you are the only node I know of so far that's dual. Mind if I check in to capture the message base? These LD charges are killing me at 2400.

BTW, can you tell me anything about Aileen Edwards-Bringle and her contactee group? Any thoughts/comments would be greatly a appreciated.

Thanks much,

Sheldon

Sure, you're welcome to call. Justget on and off the first time so I can upgrade you quickly. I'll do it right away, but that way you can establish your pw. I don't have an offline mail reader yet, so it's klutzy!

I talked to Aileen a few weeks ago and subscribed to her Journal. Let's see if I can describe the group succinctly....Definitely contactee and New Age, with a belief in channeled material. The Journal is called "The Missing Link" and is largely full of reprints, mostly sort-of UFO-related, but rarely with attribution. I'm sure some of this thing violates copyright, Physically it looks pretty bad with many typefaces and poor reproduction. Here's a list of articles in a recent issue:

"Essassani; the Living Light Center," by Aileen, about Bashar, the channeled entity, who is telling the group to establish Cities of Light across the country.
"Express the Essence" a poem about light.
"UFO's, Et's and you," by Tom Dongo, about Bigfoot
"Possible Relation Review," by Darush Bagheri, about parallels in the Koran which might be UFO sightings,
"Two Men in a Little Green Suit" about Bob Dean, a UFO enthusiast who was denied a promotion in an EMT facility and is now suing (newspaper reprint) "Roswell Alien Photo or Just another Hoax?" Focus reprint.
"I met and Flew with UFO Aliens," about Billy Meier, a newspaper reprint
"The Abduction of Sammy Desmond," by D. Scot Rogo, reprint from CUFOS from 1987.
"UFO and AAD," by Oleg Moroz, account of USSR Air Defense Forces encounters with UFOs. Looks like a repirint.

"Without a Name," by Bob Anthony, on how not having names is a good idea.

Look, I know I haven't done this justice cause it's a quick note, but I hope you can get a feel for the publication, and therefore the organization from this short sketch. Please permit me to congratulate myself for the incredible restraint I have exhibited with this post. ;-)

An associate asked me the other day to see if anyone can chase a reference in the bible for him. He was reading Strieber's "Transformation" page 109 about a memory of someone dropping "three drops of a clear liquid..onto my tounge." My associate has a recollection of there being a biblical reference to an "angel of revelation" "shall touch the elected three times on the forehead." Can anyone help with the source of this biblical reference (if it is in fact from the bible.)?
